*With Chris Collingwood

Colorway is F. Alex Johnson (vocals, guitar), Matt Clegg (bass) and Riley Godleski (drums, vocals). The band formed in Northampton, Massachusetts in 2012 and released two albums of finessed rock and roll within three years. Each album has garnered a AAA radio add: "Live With Me" from 2013's self-titled debut and "Come Back July" from 2015's The Black Sky Sequined, which was mastered by Bob Ludwig.

The trio has toured extensively in the US, while Alex continues to bring his music to Japan and Europe, performing solo shows in clubs and on the radio.

Colorway's 2018 release, These Are The Days, co-produced by Danny Bernini (Blondie, Martin Sexton, Stryper) features nine songs that loosely flow through the highs and lows of one Gen Xer's apparent midlife crisis. Time's insistent tug, questionable romances, downward spirals, hard-fought recoveries, and joyous insight and understanding are all touched on in this 42 minute collection of memorable, guitar-fueled, pop rock.

Joined by Chris Collingwood (Fountains of Wayne, Look Park) on backup vocals, Colorway hopes These Are The Days can somehow find a place amidst the noise of these uncertain times we live in. Perhaps even holding its own as a musical road map to help guide the listener through what may seem like uncharted terrain.

"GREAT guitar throughout these nine, tight, non-overproduced songs. Very fluid and imaginative playing and Alex isn't afraid to take chances. An excellent album." —Tom Guerra, Vintage Guitar Magazine

"Amazing and inspiring." Richard Lloyd, Television/Matthew Sweet

"You gotta hear this band!" --Peter Holsapple, The dB's/REM
